Ken Newens, D.V.M.

Colorado Department of Agriculture

Born and raised in Fowler, Colorado, Dr. Newens graduated from Colorado State University in 1987. He practiced in La Junta, first with Dr. Don Klinkerman and then as a solo practitioner after Dr. Klinkerman's retirement. Dr. Newens main practice interests were in beef herd health and equine medicine. After 24 years in practice he joined the Colorado Department of Agriculture, Division of Animal Industry, as a field veterinarian in May of 2011. His primary duties keep him in the north-central region of the state, but also travels to assist field veterinarians in other regions of the state as well. He is a member of the American and Colorado Veterinary Medical Associations, and the Academy of Veterinary Consultants.

Dr. Newens and his wife Karen have a daughter, Katie and a son, Kelly and will soon be moving to Weld County.
